Author/Editor Series

One of the most important, and often unsung, creative collaborations in publishing is the one between writer and editor.

The BWF Author/Editor online series explores those issues that authors and editors encounter together - structure, character and voice, when to kill those darlings that every writer has, negotiating disagreement, when an editor knows what a writer is attempting before a writer knows themselves, when an editor can overstep, and finding what is core to the story.

From the author's perspective, they will be looking at the experience of letting an editor into their work and what this means from a personal and professional perspective.
